UC Health in Cincinnati

Anthony Braun is a flight nurse for UC Health in Cincinnati. He graduated from Carroll in 1990 and went to UD to pursue a Mechanical Engineering Technology degree. After graduating from UD he took a job with P&G in Cincinnati. Nothing felt right for his calling. After a few years at P&G, he went back to school for his nursing degree. Since becoming an RN he has spent 15 years in the Level 1 trauma center emergency room. Seeing the flight nurses bring in patients frequently while working in the ER, this became an aspiration of his. In 2019 he took the last of the requirements to make the switch and has now been flying for 3 years for UC Medical Center. With almost 250 flights under his belt he's feeling pretty comfortable and confident to help others in need whether in a helicopter, in an ambulance, or in the ER.
